

Disclaimer

The Digital Exchange (DEX) maintains a private trading platform. The platform is self-regulated. It means the Issuer controls itself and agrees to act according to the international business ethics standard (Principles that when followed, promote values such as trust, good behavior, fairness, and/or kindness. There is not one consistent set of standards that all companies follow, but each company has the right to develop the standards that are meaningful for their organization).

DEX checks for completeness, not content. It does not include a legal admissibility check. The design and content of this website are protected by copyright. Any other use, even in part, is not permitted without our express consent.

The highest care has been taken in the creation of this Internet presence, but incorrect statements cannot be excluded with certainty. Also no claim to completeness and timeliness is made. All information can be changed, deleted or supplemented without prior notice.

This website may be linked to other websites. These pages were checked at the time of linking. For this reason, we expressly distance ourselves from the content of these pages.